BEING CROWD TO BE IN ST. JOSEPH.

Omaha Detectives Confident They Have the Suspected Kidnaper in Close Quarters.

ATTORNEY'S HOME WATCHED.

Officers Are Guarding Every Avenue of Escape, and if Crowe Is in St. Joseph, He Can Hardly Get Away.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.
St. Joseph, Mo., Dec. 26.-Three detectives from Omaha arrived in St. Joseph this afternoon to assist in the search that is being made here for Pat Crowe, supposed to have been implicated in the Cudahy abduction case. Two detectives came here from Omaha several days ago and are here. The Omaha officers were in conference with the local police detectives during the greater part of the afternoon, and while they give out nothing for publication, admit that they believe Crowe is here. It is evident that Chief Donahue of Omaha is of the same opinion, or the three additional men would not have been sent here. The officers claim to have positive information that Crowe is being secreted at the home of a prominent attorney here and are watching the house closely, lest he should escape. They do not want to arrest him there, as they fear they would lose the prize over by habeas corpus proceedings. They are watching for a chance to spirit their man away.

Had Long Talk With Crowe.
Omaha, Mo., Dec. 26.-There has been no new developments in the Cudahy kidnapping case during the last twenty-four hours, so far as concerns the movements of the Omaha officers. The officers claim to have positive information that Crowe is being secreted at the home of a prominent attorney here and are watching the house closely, lest he should escape. They do not want to arrest him there, as they fear they would lose the prize over by habeas corpus proceedings. They are watching for a chance to spirit their man away.

Had Long Talk With Crowe.
Omaha, Mo., Dec. 26.-There has been no new developments in the Cudahy kidnapping case during the last twenty-four hours, so far as concerns the movements of the Omaha officers. The Omaha officers were in conference with the local police detectives during the greater part of the afternoon, and while they give out nothing for publication, admit that they believe Crowe is here. It is evident that Chief Donahue of Omaha is of the same opinion, or the three additional men would not have been sent here.
